

George Sward's Story...

The Orchards at Southington is an independent and assisted living community where seniors enjoy the privacy of their own apartments and the benefits of full-service living.

For George Sward, making the decision to join The Orchards community was simple – it was just a change of address, not a change of lifestyle. Being near family in Southington and living somewhere that gave him peace of mind, made The Orchards the right home for him.

George's daughter Donna taught ceramics classes at The Orchards, as well as Jerome Home and Arbor Rose, long before he became a resident. Together, the father-daughter duo has also volunteered for the Planetree Steering Committee. Serving on the steering committee is their way of giving back to a place that has brought them joy and contentment.

"You can't please everyone all the time, but giving my input is important," George said.
